Store In First National Building Selected By Investor.

OPENS JAN. 2ND; 9 A. M. TO 9 P. M.

The Pennsylvania liquor control board, R. S. Galloway chairman, today announced that the board has chosen the First National bank building, center square, as the location for Adams county's liquor store. Public notice of the store's location was given today through The Gettysburg Times.

Adams county's liquor store, one of a chain of more than 200 which the control board expects to have opened by 9 a. m., January 2, will be in charge of a manager who has not yet been announced.

Stock of Liquor

Each store will be stocked with assorted liquors, champagnes and wines. Reserve supplies will be stored at five regional warehouses from which a fleet of warehouse-owned trucks will serve the stores in each section.

Since the board was created, less than a month ago, agents of the department have been selecting sites for state stores. Options were taken and, after the required five-day period provided for protests of residents who might object to stores in their community or vicinity, leases were closed and contracts entered for alterations.

Brown will predominate in the color scheme of the stores. Approaching customers will see a sign announcing "Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Liquor Store." Inside, price lists will be displayed prominently and purchases will be made through openings in a grided cage atop the counter across the store. The protective motif of the grills will be followed through barred windows and burglar alarms designed to safeguard high-valued stock.

9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

As purchased by wholesale, liquor will be shipped to warehouses at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Erie and Wilkes-Barre or Scranton. From those centers it will be transported by truck to the stores. From the time of its purchase, the liquor and wines will be insured against breakage and theft.

At the stores, the "merchandise" will be on sale from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily except Sundays, election days and legal holidays. Purchasers must carry their packages from the store intact; drinking on the premises will be strictly forbidden.

4 INJURED, 2 SERIOUSLY, IN HEADON CRASH

Carlisle Woman Suffers Broken Wrist And Bruises Late Tuesday.

ASPERS MAN HAS FRACTURED KNEE

Four persons were injured, two seriously, when two automobiles collided headon on the Carlisle road, south of the Reading railroad underpass at Gardner at 11:45 o'clock Tuesday night.

The most seriously injured was Mrs. Rose C. Spahr, 43, of Carlisle, who suffered a fracture of the right wrist and a severely lacerated forehead.

Mrs. Spahr and Frank Garretson, 73, well-known farmer of Aspers R. D., who suffered a fracture of the left knee and cuts on the head and body bruises, were admitted as patients to the Warner hospital. Mrs. Spahr was discharged as a patient today.

2 Others Injured

Mrs. Edith C. Spahr, 26, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Rose C. Spahr, suffered lacerations on the face and body and Earl Garretson, 31, Biglerville R. 2, nephew of Frank Garretson, suffered minor lacerations and contusions. Both received treatment at the Warner hospital.

Young Garretson was driving south on the Carlisle road, while Mrs. Rose Spahr was traveling north.

According to Patrolman H. S. Roberts of the local sub-station of the state motor patrol, who investigated, Mrs. Spahr's coach left the highway during a heavy rain, and she gave the wheel a sharp turn to the left to bring the car back onto the highway.

Crash Headon

As Mrs. Spahr's car returned to the concrete, it crashed headon into the sedan driven by young Garretson. The crash drove the motors of both cars back against the front seats, and wedged the machines so tightly together that they were pulled apart only with the aid of two trucks.

A young boy in the Spahr car and two women and a young girl in the Garretson machine escaped injury.

Garretson told Patrolman Roberts that he was traveling about 30 miles an hour at the time.

Cars Are Wrecked

Dr. Raymond Oyer, of Biglerville, was summoned to the scene of the accident, and rendered first aid to the injured. He, with the assistance of passing motorists, brought the more seriously injured to the hospital here.

According to Patrolman Roberts, the Carlisle woman had spent the evening in Gettysburg and was returning home when the accident occurred. He said Mrs. Rose Spahr's husband died last week.

Both machines were wrecked after the accident, damage to the Garretson machine being estimated at $350 and damage to the Spahr car being estimated at $200.

Countian Unhurt In Auto Crash

Automobiles driven by George S. Myers, Gettysburg R. 4, and Robert Hoke, of Hanover, collided on Frederick street, Hanover, at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. No one was injured.

The Hoke car was upset by the impact, but the driver escaped injury. Damage to the Hoke car was estimated at $25 and the machine had to be towed away. Myers was able to drive his car away under its own power after making adjustments to a front wheel.

Jesse Livermore Believed Kidnapped

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Jesse L. Livermore, wealthy stock market operator, was missing today under circumstances that led his wife to tell authorities she believed him kidnapped.

There has been no trace since three o'clock Tuesday afternoon of the man whose spectacular operations in Wall Street earned him the title of "The Boy Plunger," in his younger days.

The department of justice at Washington today ordered agents in the bureau of investigation which handles kidnapping cases under the federal law, to enter the case in co-operation with New York police.

Mrs. Livermore first communicated with police last midnight to tell them she thought her husband had been abducted.

Police checked without success various hospitals and hotels and sought out for questioning friends who ordinarily might have met him at his favorite haunts.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Frank Garretson, Aspers R. D.; Mrs. Rose C. Spahr, Carlisle; Mrs. Mahlon Bucher, Littlestown, and Miriam Rice, Arendtsville, were admitted as patients to the Warner hospital. Mrs. Rose C. Spahr, Carlisle, and Mrs. Richard Walby, Gettysburg, were discharged as patients.

A REAL GIFT

Blind for 21 years, the sight of Mrs. Thomas Naylor, of Green Bay, Wisconsin, was restored after a delicate operation and she saw her two children, Laverne, 3 (left), and Mildred, 4, for the first time. Mrs. Naylor, who has been blind since she was seven years old, remembered her husband (pictured with the group) as a childhood playmate. (Associated Press Photo.)

New Social Survey to Be Made In Gettysburg as CWA Project

Under the supervision of Harry J. Troxell, Broadway, former treasurer of Adams county, a social survey of Adams county will be undertaken as a state civil works project.

The survey, similar to those being made in Gettysburg and Biglerville, will put to work between 40 and 50 unemployed men and women, Mr. Troxell said.

The project will begin Tuesday, December 26, and is expected to be completed within ten days.

Headquarters Here
Gettysburg will be the headquarters for four counties, Adams, York, Franklin and Cumberland, during the survey. H. G. MacMurphy will be the general supervisor for the survey.

Among the data being compiled for the Gettysburg survey is the kind of house, the number of rooms, number of baths and toilets, whether equipped with gas, electricity, water, telephone and sewer, total number of occupants, including lodgers, number of servants, whether or not it is a tourist home, and if so, how many persons can be accommodated, monthly revenue from rooms or garages and employment information.

Additional data will be sought for the state survey.

Mr. Troxell pointed out that no names are used in connection with the survey so that persons may feel free to answer all questions.

Youth Arraigned On Murder Count

Franklin, Pa., Dec. 20 (AP)—Standing calmly before a magistrate, 19-year-old Walter Witherup pleaded not guilty today to a charge of murder in the death of his father, Clark Witherup, 50, Kemmerdell oil man.

Justice of the Peace Frank W. Riddle set Friday, December 29, for a hearing. It will be held in Riddle's office near Clintonville.

The formal plea was entered by Witherup's attorney, Forrest Irwin. The arraignment took less than five minutes and the boy displayed no emotion.

The charge read by Riddle accuses young Witherup of first degree murder for the slaying of his father, who was killed in an oil lease shack near Kemmerdell, December 9. His body was carried 25 miles to a creek where it was found by hunters.

BRUSH BLAZE
The Biglerville fire company was called out last midnight by a report of a fire on the Roy Baker farm. The company first went to the Roy Baker farm, near Table Rock, only to find nothing amiss there. The firemen then went to Mr. Baker's farm, near Arendtsville, where a brush fire, set on Monday was again fanned into flame.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT
A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Bucher, Littlestown, at the Warner hospital this morning. Both mother and child are reported doing nicely.

PEACE NEARS
IN ASSEMBLY

Kane Drops Attempt To Impeach Three Judges Of High Courts.

Harrisburg, Dec. 20 (AP).—One more obstacle in the legislature's path to peaceful, final adjournment was eliminated today as Representative Kane, Allegheny democrat, informed the house he has dropped the attempt to obtain impeachment of three justices of the upper Pennsylvania courts.

The peremptory fall of the gavels for this session is scheduled for noon Thursday.

Kane had sponsored the move to have the assembly impeach Justices John W. Kephart and William I. Schafer, of the supreme court and Thomas J. Baldrige, of the superior court, because they were disclosed as members of the so-called J. P. Morgan "preferred list."

"There is no use in making a gesture when the thing cannot go through," Kane asserted.

House republicans in caucus had voted to fight any move for impeachment of the judges.

G. O. P. Blocks Move

Democrats are on record as favoring impeachment.

A move to impeach Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware county, and Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the house, because of their connection with the Delaware county liquor conspiracy was halted by the republicans.

This impeachment resolution, introduced by Representative Quinn, Allegheny, got to the floor and was shunted to committee.

The Kane resolution was sent to the rostrum, but was recalled after Kane and Speaker Grover C. Talbot conferred.

At that time Kane said the resolution would be presented later.

The house meanwhile received senate communications and concurred in that branch's amendment to the Blumberg bill reducing the appropriation for assistance to the aged from $8,000,000 to $6,000,000. The money is to come from the liquor fund.

Goes To Prison
For His Part In Station Robbery

Carlisle, Dec. 20.—Theodore Faust, who was by his own admission, one of three men who tortured an attendant at robbing the Hertzler gasoline station in Carlisle last January 11, was sentenced to the Eastern penitentiary for seven and one-half to fifteen years.

The sentence was imposed by Judge Fred S. Reese in miscellaneous court Tuesday morning.

In passing sentence on Faust, who had been out of the penitentiary less than seven months when he participated in the robbery in Carlisle, Judge Reese revealed that the 33-year-old defendant, a resident of Mauch Chunk, had been adjudged criminally insane by a state psychiatrist as the result of tests conducted recently in the Cumberland county prison in Carlisle. The degree of insanity, however, was not sufficient to warrant the man's confinement in an institution for the insane, Judge Reese said.

TEX GUINAN'S JEWELRY
BRINGS LITTLE AT SALE

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The sparkling jewelry and shiny gadgets which once were the pride of the late Tex Guinan's heart were auctioned off Tuesday.

Tex was proud of her jewels and believed they were worth $40,000, but they only brought $9,100 from the dealers who bid in the diamond rings, jeweled vanity cases and gold slave bracelets.

An inch and a half bracelet of 586 diamonds and a ten-carat diamond ring the night club queen once flashed in the eyes of her customers were sold for $1,875 and $1,525, respectively.

Today the auction ends with the sale of Tex's gold-plated spinning wheel, a 100-piece dinner set with gold and platinum leaf centers and the bullet-proof limousine she rode in.

INDIANA PRISON GUARD IS STABBED BY CONVICT

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 20 (AP).—A. H. Baumeister, a guard at the state prison, was stabbed four times early Tuesday morning and wounded seriously by an unknown convict at the institution.

Baumeister is in the prison hospital where physicians said it is doubtful if he will recover. Prison officials questioned twenty-five convicts in an effort to learn the identity of his assailant.

The stabbing took place as Baumeister was making his early morning rounds. A hooked ladder was found at the spot and prison authorities expressed the belief the convict was attempting to scale the wall when surprised by the guard.

Lindberghs Ask To Be Left
Alone After Long Air Jaunt

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Lindberghs flew home Tuesday—in time for Christmas with baby Jon.

The colonel and his navigating wife dived low over the Morrow home at Englewood, New Jersey, saluting their 16-month-old son, and then dropped their big red monoplane in Flushing Bay at 2:38 p. m.

Behind them was an Odyssey from the Northern Lights to the Equator; before them was Christmas with the folks.

Wish To Go Home Quietly

"The only thing we want right now is for all these people to let us go home quietly," the colonel smiled as he and Anne Morrow Lindbergh climbed from their plane. "We've been traveling around a bit, you know."

"We consider the trip a success, and we believe our work has been accomplished. Right now we're both rather cold and I think we'd

ATTORNEY SAYS
INSULL CROOKED

Court Agrees Utility Company Was Insolvent
"Months Ago."

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP).—The Insull receiverships were branded by Attorney Samuel Ettelson in federal court Tuesday as a "fraud," conceived and instituted by Samuel Insull, Sr., to "cover his crookedness."

Federal Judge Van A. Evans agreed with the attorney that Insull Utility Investments, Inc., was "hopelessly ripe for receivership" ten months before the actual fall. The court took under advisement, promising a decision soon. Ettelson's charges that the elder Insull and his bankers and creditors were guilty of collusion in picking their receivers and attorneys.

Ettelson gained a hearing on his charges by moving to refuse fees to Calvin Pentress, former co-receiver of Insull Utility Investments, and to Pentress' attorneys.

Insull Forced To Resign

Evidence had been introduced that Insull planned the receiverships of his companies, picked the complaining creditors, chose an Insull attorney, George Cook, as a receiver to act with Pentress, and finally was forced to resign as a receiver himself when evidence of corporate malpractice turned up.

As Judge Evans took the matter under advisement, he observed: "I am absolving Mr. Pentress and the bankers of fraud and collusion, but what was the purpose he (Insull) had? As the largest stockholder he was he actuated by fraud? The point was well taken that when Pentress and the bankers found out alleged illegal acts—that is, the hypotheation of securities—they asked Insull to withdraw as receiver. But if the court should decide to pay Mr. Pentress would not that be an encouragement to others?"

2 Human Icicles
Saved From Wreck

Ketchikan, Alaska, Dec. 20 (AP).—Described by their rescuers as "crawling pieces of ice," George Stetzel, 60, and Charles Hanson, 50, were brought to a hospital here Tuesday after a blizzard dashed their small boat upon the rocks of Annette island.

Thrown into the icy waters in the wreck of their craft, the Palmer S. they started crawling along the beach, freezing as they crawled. A group of Metlakatla Indians saw a light on the beach and found that Hanson, unable to use his hands, was holding a flashlight in his mouth.

Though Indians said the men were on the beach only half an hour, Hanson was delirious when rescued.

Doctor Saw Own Baby Die--Saves
One Similarly Ill 25 Years Later

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—The tragic experience of a Kentucky doctor when he lost his own baby twenty-five years ago enabled him to save the life of a friend's child.

He is Dr. Thomas L. Higginbotham, of Louisville, Kentucky. A young surgeon a quarter of a century ago, Doctor Higginbotham was powerless to save his baby, dying in infancy with an acute tonsil infection. In those days surgeons had not perfected a technique for removal of tonsils from babies suffering with high fever.

So, as he watched his baby die, the doctor determined to develop such a technique. A nurse who had watched the case knew his resolve.

like to go where it's warm. Right now I'd rather not say anything."

An official of the aircraft factory where they landed was the first to greet Lindbergh when he climbed down to the dock. He greeted the flyer and said:

"We're glad to see you back here after all the traveling you've done."

Says He's Glad To Be Back
"And believe me," said Lindbergh, his face broad with the famous grin and red with cold, "we're glad to be back."

And Mrs. Lindbergh climbing out of the cockpit behind her husband, jumped to the dock beside him and said:

"I know I'm glad to be back."

Then to Englewood they went, where they arrived at 5:55 p. m.

Their last hop of their 25,000-mile journey from Charleston, South Carolina, the crowds recognized the ship as it roared over New Jersey. They raced over Teterboro, New Jersey, airport. A big plane with photographers arose to come alongside, and the colonel began a game of tag with his pursuers.

Banks And Dodges Into Haze

The big plane was faster than the Lindberghs. It was on his tail when the colonel banked suddenly and the pursuer roared overhead. Colonel Lindbergh shot his plane into a haze to the west and a few minutes later was over the teeming East river.

"It's Lindy!" the crowds shouted.

Ships strained their whistle cords and blasted salutes. New York watched the sky. Gracefully the trim air yacht circled low over the stream and darted for Flushing Bay.

The Lindberghs skimmed over the bay, zoomed high enough to see the crowd at Curtis airport and then circled the bay again before dropping down about half a mile off shore.

Crowd Waiting On Beach

The colonel taxied his ship to a flat. Mrs. Lindbergh smiled at the crowd on the beach. Lindbergh immediately began mooring his plane. He fastened the ship to a float and the couple stepped ashore.

The colonel was the first to alight. He stretched his legs a second and then climbed back aboard to cut his motors. Out again, he assisted Anne from the plane.

KILLS MAN TO

Young Law Student Admits
Slaying Farmer Who Attacked Young Lady.

Cleveland, Dec. 20. — Britten Young, a popular young Western Reserve university law student, Tuesday was placed under a technical charge of manslaughter in the lonely "lovers' lane" killing of a farmer in Pepper Pike Village near here.

In a formal statement to the authorities Young, nephew of Congressman-at-large Stephen Young, said he had shot and killed Charles Metling, 52, because the latter had attempted to molest Miss Ruth Reiter, a pretty co-ed, with whom Young had been parked on the isolated road.

Immediately after his release under $1000, Young was greeted dramatically by the girl's father, Dr. J. J. Reiter, prominent Canton physician, who said:

Congratulates Youth

"My boy, I want to congratulate you. You certainly showed great courage. Ruth and I will stand by you as long as you need us."

Donald Young, father of the 21-year-old boy, joined in statements issued by Congressman Young and Mayor A. W. Simonson, of Pepper Pike Village, who said the farmer had attempted to attack the girl. The mayor disclosed that the farmer had often been seen in the vicinity of the shooting. Doctor Reiter said:

"I talked with my daughter. She told me the full story. There is no doubt about the intent of the farmer."

The mayor said he had no doubt Metling had intended to commit a crime. He added he was of the opinion that the young law student would win his freedom.

Fleet-Wings Engage
Colored Champions

Strong Renaissance Quintet Plays Here Wednesday; Preliminary Game.

Fired by their victory over the widely heralded Philadelphia Pason quintet, the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings are now looking forward to their game with the colored Renaissance team, claimants to the world's championship, here tonight. The Wings are not without hope of turning back the Renaissance and a victory would stamp the local quintet as one of the best in this section of the country.

Led by Captain "Fat" Jenkins, reputedly the fastest colored player in professional ranks, the Renaissance present a classy array of cage artists. Tarzan Cooper, six-foot, four-inch center, is regarded as one of the best tap-off men in basketball today.

"Pappy" Ricks and "Bruiser" Satch, forwards, are two speedy boys who are dead shots. Casey Holt and Bill Jenkins alternate at guard with Fat Jenkins and round out a powerful outfit.

Last year the "Rens" turned in their best record since organizing in 1925, winning 127 games and losing but 8.

A preliminary game between the local C. C. camp and the Sweetland quintet will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Igor Karakhan, wealthy crook hiding in the wild Canadian north-west, is overjoyed to receive a letter from Sonya Volkov, saying she is joining him. But Curt Tennison, who is training Karakhan, has seen a copy of the letter and is determined to keep Sonya from him. He has been protecting the wilderness. Curt, embittered, plans to follow Sonya to Karakhan. And Karakhan congratulates himself on his luck.

Chapter 33
THE DEPARTURE
After LeNor had gone to sleep, Karakhan left the cabin and walked down the lake shore, unconsciously seeking the open where walls did not limit his mood.

He could hardly yet believe his good fortune. He had never dreamed Sonya was searching for him or even that she liked him well enough to join him. He could easily imagine it of Helen Matheson or others like her, but not of Sonya Volkov.

In the course of his dealings with her father and brother at Victoria, he had met her and immediately thrown over the Matheson girl for her, but she had proved the most elusive creature of his wide experience. At times he had even been a little afraid of her—and now she was actually coming to him.

He believed he understood those six weeks. Her letter, especially one sentence of it, explained her aloofness there in Victoria. She had been playing a girl's shy game with him, leading him on, perhaps feeling herself hampered by the presence of her father and brother, but after he had dropped from sight.

You disappearance was an awakening for me, an unbearable realization of what I had lost. No coyness there, but a cry of sheer longing for him!

A mile down the lake shore he came to a small cove, screened by sweeping pines—a beautiful little retreat with its tinkle of water and scented of cloudberry blossoms. Leaning against a lichened rock he watched a pair of harlequin ducks tinkle and feed in the shallows.

In the back of his mind he was imagining Sonya Volkov there with him in that seclusion, but his thoughts were gradually sobering, for those two suspicious strangers kept intruding, a jarring discord in his fancies.

He knew now that they were not prospectors, whatever else they might be. Gold hunters would hardly have disregarded that warning at the pass, and after that night attack they would certainly have got out of the country as fast as a canoe could take them.

To judge by LeNor's account they were a set of competent devils. A small voice whispered that this Ralston was one of those damnable Mounted, who had struck his trail somehow and was sticking to it like a human bloodhound.

It put him in a dilemma. He was in danger and ought to escape. Though LeNor had thirty-some men now and stood every chance in the world of wiping that party out still something might slip up and those two might bore on through to his refuge. By all the rules of caution he ought to go.

But to leave just when Sonya Volkov was on the way to him and he had the prospects of having her there during the soft summer moons. For once he could not make a clean-cut decision.

Suppose, he reasoned, that he let LeNor go south with the man band of Klosshees and spring his attack. LeNor could send back runners and keep him constantly informed of what was happening. If Ralston was killed and all danger from him was ended with the bang of finality, well and good, he would stay there and wait for Sonya.

But if Ralston were not killed, he would escape. There would still be time. That plane in the hangar was an ace up his sleeve. It gave one an almost magical power of vanishing.

It bothered him more than a little too think that he might have to leave Sonya in the lurch, so helpless, so far back in those appalling mountains. But he had long since passed the point of allowing any scruples to stop him, or any dalliance, however pleasant, to endanger him. His own safety came first.

On his return he stopped at the hangar and looked over the plane carefully. It needed a bit of work—frayed control leads to replace fouled plugs to scrape, a few trifling adjustments to be made; but in general it had come through the winter in fly-away shape. He checked the gas again to reassure himself.

The wing tanks showed fifty-four gallons, with six more in the emergency and ten extra gallons still in one of the drums which LeNor had brought. Seventy gallons all together, it would take him to some coast town far south of Novonessky.

Another hop would put him in Seattle. Thirty hours after leaving his hiding in the Lulliers, he would step out on Mexican soil, safe from extradition and with no tracks left in the pathless sky.

At noon, when the Klosshees began waking up, he went in and roused LeNor.

"You go back south with Siam-Kiale," he directed, "and hook up with those eight others. Your first move will be to get Miss Volkov away from that party, so she won't be exposed to any danger. Then choose your time and place, and finish this business off. Don't try to ambush or outwit those two. When you've got an advantage of

LeNor nodded. He was not foolishly confident, he knew what a terrific fight Ralston and his partner would put up; but they were only two men, against three dozen. The others did not count. Nichols was a tenderfoot, and those two guides would not be worth anything in a show-down fight.

"Don't run any risk yourself," the Russian cautioned him—needlessly. You won't have to. Let the Klosshees do it. Now, just one other point. If anything at all goes wrong, I mean if you don't kill those two at your first smash, fire a runner to me at once. I want to know about it. I'll come down there and help you. You'll do that now?"

LeNor thought it odd that his chief, who always before had kept strictly away from danger, should want to get into this first personally. But he promised to send the word.

They walked outside to the Klosshees camp where the men were getting ready to shove away. A silent tight-lipped band, they were going about their little war with no ceremony or fol-de-rol. Even to Karakhan, who was heartily tired of them, they were an admirable body of men.

Siam-Kiale, trundling along the water and gring orders was the only repulsive one of the lot. Half a head taller than any of the others, he had the massive build of a grizzly, the close set eyes of a caracajon, and an indomitable physical courage which overawed even the mountain men that he ruled. He could be depended upon to put some fire into the attack.

The little bottle pushed off and started east along the shore. When they had disappeared around a headland, Karakhan pulled the plane out of its shelter and set to work on it. The overhauling job took him six hours, but he did it thoroughly.

Curt looked up from cleaning his rifle. "You saw some caribou, you say?" he asked of Jocku, who stood in front of him with gun and canoe paddle. "Where?"

Jocku pointed down lake at a birch island, barely visible in the twilight. "On dat Francois and me, 'bout ten minut ago, we saw em edge out to drink and den 'ronp back into de bush."

The trip seemed safe enough to Curt. His party did need meat, as Jocku said. A yearling caribou would come in handy.

"All right, go ahead, you and Francois," he consented. "But don't stay down there and let dark catch you or these Klosshees might shoot out canoes and cut you off."

The two guides promised him and hurried away. Curt was glad to see them go. Ever since his party had broken camp at the Iskitumwah mouth and come on north, they had lived in a nervous funk. A bit of hunting would do them good.

When he had finished with his rifle he began loading extra magazine clips to be ready if something unexpected burst on him and Paul before morning. From signs they had noticed that day he believed that Siam-Kiale's main band had arrived and was camping over on the northwest shore. If so the stage was all set for trouble, a whole barrel of it. The camp was entirely safe at present, as long as Sonya was with the party. LeNor would hold off, for a fight would expose her to danger. But as soon as he got her away, LeNor was going to touch off the avalanche.

Tomorrow, Sonya makes overtures of peace to Curt.

Christina
The Xmas Doll

SYNOPSIS: Christina a doll from Toyland, is rescued by the ice and snow fairies from the one-eyed giant. But she is made invisible by a naughty queen who wanted the doll to go back to her kingdom.

CHAPTER IX
THE MAGIC BRACELET
Christina and the fairies were so frightened after the naughty queen left them. The fairies could not see the doll and yet they could hear her talk.

"Never mind, Christina," consoled a little snow man. "Just take our hands as you did before and we'll fly back to Santa for help."

So they flew back to Toyland. "Well, where's Christina?" asked Santa as the fairies entered.

"Here, I am Santa," said the doll. "What? What's this?" exclaimed Santa. He looked and looked where Christina was standing but he couldn't see her.

"Dear me, dear me," cried Christina. And the fairies told Santa the sad story. All the toys listened, and then there was such a to-do. They wept and they all tried to see the doll.

"Woof, woof," barked the white woolly dog. "She's my special playmate and I'm so lonesome."

"There's only one thing to do," said Mrs. Santa who had been listening silently. "We must find out who can unlock the bracelet."

"Who in the world could it be?" said Santa so sadly.

But then the queerest thing happened. A little voice said, "Tinkle, tinkle."

"What can that be?" said everyone.

"It's me—the bracelet."

The bracelet said Santa. What can you tell us?"

So the tinkling voice sang. "The little one who patterned me, Can smile and hear but cannot see. He lives in the roots of a tall pine tree."

Now who in the world can that be?

So the bracelet itself was helping Santa. Everybody was delighted. Who could hunt the tiny goldsmith that had made the bracelet?

Let me go let me!" barked the white woolly dog.

And let me go with him, begged Christina.

So the two started off together.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Open Every Night Until Christmas

HANOVER, PA.

FORBIDDEN VALLEY

By William Byron Mowery

SYNOPSIS: Igor Karakhan, wealthy crook hiding in the wild Canadian northwest is overjoyed to receive a letter from Sonya Volkov saying she is joining him. But Curt Tennyson, who is trailing Karakhan, has seen a copy of the letter and it has killed his love for Sonya, whom he has protected in the wilderness. Curt, embittered, plans to follow Sonya to Karakhan. And Karakhan congratulates himself on his luck.

Chapter 33

THE DEPARTURE

After LeNoir had gone to sleep, Karakhan left the cabin and walked down the lake shore, unconsciously seeking the open where walls did not limit his mood.

He could hardly yet believe his good fortune. He had never dreamed Sonya was searching for him or even that she liked him well enough to join him. He could easily imagine it of Helen Mathieson or others like her, but not of Sonya Volkov.

In the course of his dealings with her father and brother at Victoria, he had met her and immediately thrown over the Mathieson girl for her; but she had proved the most elusive creature of his wide experience. At times he had even been a little afraid of her—and now she was actually coming to him.

He believed he understood those six weeks. Her letter, especially one sentence of it, explained her aloofness there in Victoria. She'd been playing a girl's shy game with him, leading him on, perhaps feeling herself hampered by the presence of her father and brother; but after he had dropped from sight. . . . "You disappearance was an awakening for me, an unbearable realization of what I had lost." . . . No coyness there, but a cry of sheer longing for him!

A mile down the lake shore he came to a small cove, screened by sweeping pines—a beautiful little retreat with its tinkle of water and scent of cloudberry blossoms. Leaning against a lichened rock he watched a pair of harlequin ducks tinkle and feed in the shallows. In the back of his mind he was imagining Sonya Volkov there with him in that seclusion; but his thoughts were gradually sobering, for those two suspicious strangers kept intruding, a jarring discord in his fancies.

He knew now that they were not prospectors, whatever else they might be. Gold hunters would hardly have disregarded that warning at the pass; and after that night attack they would certainly have got out of the country as fast as a canoe could take them.

To judge by LeNoir's account, they were a lot of competent devils. A small voice whispered that this Ralston was one of those damnable Mounted, who had struck his trail somehow and was sticking to it like a human bloodhound. It put him in a dilemma. He was in danger and ought to escape. Though LeNoir had thirty-some men now and stood every chance in the world of wiping that party out, still something might slip up and those two might bore on through to his refuge. By all the rules of caution he ought to go.

But to leave just when Sonya Volkov was on the way to him and he had the prospects of having her there during the soft summer moons. . . . For once he could not make a clean-cut decision.

Suppose, he reasoned, that he let LeNoir go south with the man band of Klosohees and spring his attack. LeNoir could send back runners and keep him constantly informed of what was happening. If Ralston was killed and all danger from him was ended with the bang of finality, well and good; he would stay there and wait for Sonya.

But if Ralston were not killed, he would escape. There would still be time. That plane in the hangar was an ace up his sleeve. It gave one an almost magical power of vanishing.

It bothered him more than a little too think that he might have to leave Sonya in the lurch, so helpless, so far back in those appalling mountains. But he had long since passed the point of allowing any scruples to stop him, or any dalliance, however pleasant, to endanger him. His own safety came first.

On his return he stopped at the hangar and looked over the plane carefully. It needed a bit of work—frayed control leads to replace, fouled plugs to scrape, a few trifling adjustments to be made; but in general it had come through the winter in fly-away shape. He checked the gas again to reassure himself.

The wing tanks showed fifty-four gallons, with six more in the emergency, and ten extra gallons still in one of the drums which LeNoir had brought. Seventy gallons all together, it would take him to some coast town far south of Novonesky. Another hop would put him in Seattle. Thirty hours after leaving his hiding in the Lilluars, he would step out on Mexican soil, safe from extradition and with no tracks left in the pathless sky.

At noon, when the Klosohees began waking up, he went in and roused LeNoir.

"You go back south with Siam-Klale," he directed, "and hook up with those eight others. Your first move will be to get Miss Volkov away from that party, so she won't be exposed to any danger. Then choose your time and place, and finish this business off. Don't try to ambush or outwit those two. When you've got an advantage of

LeNoir nodded. He was not foolishly confident, he knew what a terrific fight Ralston and his partner would put up; but they were only two men, against three dozen. The others did not count. Nichols was a tenderfoot, and those two guides would not be worth anything in a show-down fight.

"Don't run any risk yourself," the Russian cautioned him—needlessly. "You won't have to. Let the Klosohees do it. Now, just one other point. If anything at all goes wrong, I mean if you don't kill those two at your first smash, fire a runner to me at once. I want to know about it. I'll come down there and help you. You'll do that, now?"

LeNoir thought it odd that his chief, who always before had kept strictly away from danger, should want to get into this first personally. But he promised to send the word.

They walked outside to the Klosohee camp where the men were getting ready to shove away. A silent tight-lipped band, they were going about their little war with no ceremony or fol-de-rol. Even to Karakhan, who was heartily tired of them, they were an admirable body of men.

Siam-Klale, trundling along the water and giving orders, was the only repulsive one of the lot. Half a head taller than any of the others, he had the massive build of a grizzly, the close set eyes of a caracajou, and an indomitable physical courage which overawed even the mountain men that he ruled. He could be depended upon to put some fire into the attack.

The little flotilla pushed off and started east along the shore. When they had disappeared around a headland, Karakhan pulled the plane out of its shelter and set to work on it. The overhauling job took him six hours, but he did it thoroughly.

Curt looked up from cleaning his rifle. "You saw some caribou, you say?" he asked of Jocku, who stood in front of him with gun and canoe paddle. "Where?"

Jocku pointed down lake at a birch island, barely visible in the twilight. "On dat, Francois and me, 'bout ten minit ago, we saw 'em edge out to drink and den tramp back into de bush."

The trip seemed safe enough to Curt. His party did need meat, as Jocku said. A yearling caribou would come in handy.

"All right, go ahead, you and Francois," he consented. "But don't stay down there and let dark catch you, or these Klosohees might shoot out canoes and cut you off."

The two guides promised him and hurried away. Curt was glad to see them go. Ever since his party had broken camp at the Iskitimwah mouth and come on north, they had lived in a nervous funk. A bit of hunting would do them good.

When he had finished with his rifle, he began loading extra magazine clips, to be ready if something unexpected burst on him and Paul before morning. From signs they had noticed that day he believed that Siam-Klale's main band had arrived and was camping over on the northwest shore. If so, the stage was all set for trouble, a whole barrel of it. The camp was entirely safe at present; as long as Sonya was with the party LeNoir would hold off, for a fight would expose her to danger. But as soon as he got her away, LeNoir was going to touch off the avalanche. (Copyright, 1933, William B. Mowery)

Tomorrow, Sonya makes overtures of peace to Curt.

Christina The Xmas Doll

SYNOPSIS: Christina, a doll from Toyland, is rescued by the ice and snow fairies from the one-eyed giant. But she is made invisible by a naughty queen who wanted the doll to go back to her kingdom.

THE MAGIC BRACELET

Christina and the fairies were so frightened after the naughty queen left them. The fairies could not see the doll and yet they could hear her talk.

"Never mind, Christina," consoled a little snow man. "Just take our hands as you did before and we'll fly back to Santa for help."

So they flew back to Toyland. "Well, where's Christina?" asked Santa as the fairies entered.

"Here, I am Santa," said the doll. "What? What's this?" exclaimed Santa. He looked and looked where Christina was standing but he couldn't see her.

"Dear me, dear me," cried Christina. And the fairies told Santa the sad story. All the toys listened, and then there was a to-do. They wept and they all tried to see the doll.

"Woof, woof," barked the white woolly dog. "She's my special playmate and I'm so lonesome."

"There's only one thing to do," said Mrs. Santa, who had been listening silently. "We must find out who can unlock the bracelet."

"Who in the world could it be?" said Santa so sadly.

But then the queerest thing happened. A little voice said, "Tinkle, tinkle."

"What can that be?" said everyone.

"It's me—the bracelet,"

"The bracelet," said Santa. "What can you tell us?"

So the tinkling voice sang:

"The little one who patterned me. Can smell and hear but cannot see. He lives in the roots of a tall pine tree."

Now who in the world can that be?"

So the bracelet itself was helping Santa. Everybody was delighted. Who would hunt the tiny goldsmith that had made the bracelet.

"Let me go, let me!" barked the white woolly dog.

"And let me go with him," begged Christina.

So the two started off together.

Kane Drops Attempt To Impeach Three Judges Of High Courts.

Harrisburg, Dec. 20 (AP)—One more obstacle in the legislature's path to peaceful, final adjournment was eliminated today as Representative Kane, Allegheny democrat, informed the house he has dropped the attempt to obtain impeachment of three justices of the upper Pennsylvania courts.

The peremptory fall of the gavel for this session is scheduled for noon Thursday.

Kane had sponsored the move to have the assembly impeach Justices John W. Kephart and William I. Schaffer, of the supreme court and Thomas J. Baldrige, of the superior court, because they were disclosed as members of the so-called J. P. Morgan "preferred list."

G. O. P. Blocks Move
Democrats are on record as favoring impeachment.

A move to impeach Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware county, and Eugene F. White, chief clerk of the house, because of their connection with the Delaware county liquor conspiracy was halted by the republicans.

This impeachment resolution, introduced by Representative Quinn, Allegheny, got to the floor and was shunted to committee.

The Kane resolution was sent to the rostrum, but was recalled after Kane and Speaker Grover C. Talbot conferred.

At that time Kane said the resolution would be presented later.

The house meanwhile received senate communications and concurred in that branch's amendment to the Blumberg bill reducing the appropriation for assistance to the aged from $8,000,000 to $6,000,000. The money is to come from the liquor fund.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—A dog fell off a ten-story building Tuesday and hit a man on the head.

The animal was a forty-pound setter named "Tut" and as a result Albert E. Barrett, 45, of Morristown, N. J., in Beekman Street hospital, with a possible fracture of the skull.

Lindberghs Ask To Be Left
Alone After Long Air Jaunt

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Lindberghs flew home Tuesday—now I'd rather not say anything.

An official of the aircraft factory where they landed was the first to greet Lindbergh when he climbed down to the dock. He greeted the flyer and said:

"We're glad to see you back here after all the traveling you've done."

Says He's Glad To Be Back
"And believe me," said Lindbergh, "his face broad with the famous grin and red with cold, 'we're glad to be back.'"

And Mrs. Lindbergh climbing out of the cockpit behind her husband, jumped to the dock beside him and said:

"I know I'm glad to be back."

Then to Englewood they went, where they arrived at 5:55 p. m.

Their last hop of their 25,000-mile journey from Charleston, South Carolina, the crowds recognized the ship as it roared over New Jersey. They raced over Teterboro, New Jersey, airport. A big plane with photographers arose to come alongside, and the colonel began a game of tag with his pursuers.

Banks And Dodges Into Haze
The big plane was faster than the Lindberghs. It was on his tail when the colonel banked suddenly and the pursuer roared overhead. Colonel Lindbergh shot his plane into a haze to the west and a few minutes later was over the teeming East river.

"It's Lindy!" the crowds shouted. Ships strained their whistle cords and blasted salutes. New York watched the sky. Gracefully the trim air yacht circled low over the stream and darted for Flushing Bay.

The Lindberghs skimmed over the bay, zoomed high enough to see the crowd at Curtis airport and then circled the bay again before dropping down about half a mile off shore.

Crowd Waiting On Beach
The colonel taxied his ship to a flat. Mrs. Lindbergh smiled at the crowd on the beach. Lindbergh immediately began mooring his plane. He fastened the ship to a float and the couple stepped ashore.

The colonel was the first to alight. He stretched his legs a second and then climbed back aboard to cut his motors. Out again, he assisted Anne from the plane.

Tucson, Ariz., Dec. 20 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, forced to come west two weeks ago because of a throat ailment, was removed to the Desert sanatorium, near here, Tuesday, for prolonged confinement.

Doctor Saw Own Baby Die--Saves One Similarly Ill 25 Years Later

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—The tragic experience of a Kentucky doctor when he lost his own baby twenty-five years ago enabled him to save the life of a friend's child.

He is Dr. Thomas L. Higginbotham, of Louisville, Kentucky.

A young surgeon a quarter of a century ago, Doctor Higginbotham was powerless to save his baby, dying in infancy with an acute tonsil infection. In those days surgeons had not perfected a technique for removal of tonsils from babies suffering with high fever.

KILLS MAN TO

Young Law Student Admits Slaying Farmer Who Attacked Young Lady.

Cleveland, Dec. 20.—Britten Young, a popular young Western Reserve university law student, Tuesday was placed under a technical charge of manslaughter in the lonely "lovers' lane" killing of a farmer in Pepper Pike Village near here.

In a formal statement to the authorities Young, nephew of Congressman-at-large Stephen Young, said he had shot and killed Charles Metling, 52, because the latter had attempted to molest Miss Ruth Reiter, a pretty co-ed, with whom Young had been parked on the isolated road.

Immediately after his release under $1000, Young was greeted dramatically by the girl's father, Dr. J. J. Reiter, prominent Canton physician, who said:

"My boy, I want to congratulate you. You certainly showed great courage. Ruth and I will stand by you as long as you need us."

Donald Young, father of the 21-year-old boy, joined in statements issued by Congressman Young and Mayor A. W. Simonson, of Pepper Pike Village, who said the farmer had attempted to attack the girl. The mayor disclosed that the farmer had often been seen in the vicinity of the shooting. Doctor Reiter said:

"I talked with my daughter. She told me the full story. There is no doubt about the intent of the farmer."

The mayor said he had no doubt Metling had intended to commit a crime. He added he was of the opinion that the young law student would win his freedom.

Fleet-Wings Engage
Colored Champions

Strong Renaissance Quintet Plays Here Wednesday; Preliminary Game.

Fired by their victory over the widely heralded Philadelphia Pashon quintet, the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings are now looking forward to their game with the colored Renaissance team, claimants to the world's championship, here tonight.

The Wings are not without hope of turning back the Renaissance and a victory would stamp the local quintet as one of the best in this section of the country.

Led by Captain "Fat" Jenkins, reputedly the fastest colored player in professional ranks, the Renaissance present a classy array of cage artists. Tarzan Cooper, six-foot, four-inch center, is regarded as one of the best tap-off men in basketball today.

"Pappy" Ricks and "Bruiser" Saith, forwards, are two speedy boys who are dead shots. Casey Holt and Bill Yancey alternate at guard with Fat Jenkins and round out a powerful outfit.

Last year the "Rens" turned in their best record since organizing in 1925, winning 127 games and losing but 8.

A preliminary game between the local C. C. camp and the Sweetland quintet will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

And Mary arose in those days, and went into the hill country, with haste, into city of Juda;

And entered into the house of Zacharias, and saluted Elisabeth.

And it came to pass, that, when Elisabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Elisabeth was filled with the Holy Ghost;

And she spake out with a loud voice, and said, Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb.

And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?

For, lo, as soon as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

And blessed is she that believed;
for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord.—Luke 1:29-45

COOKIES AS GIFTS

A box of Christmas cookies, wrapped with holiday papers and sealed makes a most appropriate gift for a child or grownup friend.
If the cookies are packed as soon as made and quantities of waxed paper used to fill the box and the box then securely wrapped and tied, the cookies will keep fresh for at least two weeks, so that they can be sent distances to those away from home. A metal box, if available, is suggested to use for holding Christmas sweets when they are to be sent out of town, as then there is less chance of air getting into the products which causes them to become stale. When packing confections it is best to pack them very tightly. Use waxed paper between layers of foods.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

AS A MAN THINKETH

ONE of the marvels of this human machine that we all possess is its manner of handling by the brain. "As a man thinketh, so is he," is as true as anything ever uttered. The greatest miracle in all creation is that of the human mind.

I was reading the other evening of the many inventions of Thomas A.
Edison. It seems incredible that any mind could so create.

My visit to Chicago's "Century of Progress" left this mind of mine in a greater state of wondering than ever before. The things that I saw there were almost unbelievable—so great and far reaching were they. And all the product of men's thinking—and thinking.

If a young man were to ask me how to succeed in life, I would say that first he must think in terms of success. We should all continually think ahead—always ahead. I have never heard of a young man who succeeded by thinking that he couldn't succeed! Thinking success is believing success—and so how could such a one fail?

This world in which we find ourselves really belongs most to the one who is most able to appreciate it. It's a good world. A great world. So great a world that it is almost inconceivable—yet thousands of things about it that he wisest miss!

Life is great, and this world good, only to those able—and willing—to appreciate goodness and greatness, and to think that life is great and the world good.

Constructive thinking is always healthy and happy thinking. I heard the other day of a man whom the doctors long ago had told could not live longer than a few years. For a time he was resigned, but the more he thought about it, the more determined he was that he should live out his allotted span. So one day he threw away his pills and medicines—and soon went to work again. The last I heard of him he was still living at the age of 80! As a man thinketh.

W. H. Hudson was told, as a young man under 20 in years, that he could not live longer than perhaps to middle life. And so he devoted all his time and efforts to telling the world about nature and her miracles, her beauties, and her mysteries. He, too, lived to the ripe age of 80. And Hudson left thoughts in a score or so of books that will inspire untold multitudes.

As a man thinketh. That's the secret behind the story of every man and every success, and behind all influence.

Eat slowly at regular times.

Chew your food well.

Drink plenty of water.

Rest awhile after meals.

Simple, eh?

But of what great value!

In former days, many a man and woman went through life "troubled with indigestion."

Today we know that most people who believe they are suffering from indigestion really have some serious organic disturbance.

Complaints after meals may come from an ulcer of the stomach.

Violent stabbing pains may mean gall-stones or appendicitis. With either of these, the use of laxatives or other forms of self-medication may prove fatal. Consult your physician.

Indigestion may be due to trouble in the kidneys or the teeth.

That distressing feeling is not a disease itself.

It is a warning that should be heeded.

The modern doctor can usually by a thorough examination find out just what is the trouble.

But too many people procrastinate and insist that they have indigestion, which is but a symptom and not a disease.

As Mr. A. said, "My father had

When someone has some ache in the region of their stomach

They show no hesitation—but call it indigestion.

That's the way most people are about indigestion.

The word "indigestion" is used most indiscriminately.

Almost any symptom from a headache to a real distention of the abdomen is termed indigestion.

But it is not to be wondered at if many people do have indigestion.

We live so hieetically today.

Food is hastily snatched and hurriedly consumed with little regard for food value and less to proper mastication.

To live best it is necessary to eat correctly.

Here are four little rules that should not only be known by every one—but followed:

tablespoons grated orange rind; 1 teaspoon lemon extract; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 4 cups flour; 1 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Cream butter and sugar. Add cream, orange pulp and eggs. Beat well. Add rest of ingredients, mixing lightly. Chill dough 5 hours or longer. Break off bits of dough, flatten down 3 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Bake 10 minutes in moderate oven.

POSTS REWARD FOR LYNCHERS

Tennessee Governor Offers $1,000 For Negro's Killers.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 20 (AP)—Describing the lynching of Cord Cheek Friday night as a "disgrace," Governor Hill McAllister Monday posted a $1000 reward for apprehension of the negro's slayers, while the county grand jury laid aside all other matters to push "a thorough and complete investigation."

While the 19-year-old negro's body was found hanging from a cedar tree near Columbia, in Maury county, it developed that he had been kidnapped from the home of relatives here and, therefore, Davidson county authorities assumed jurisdiction.

Jury Ordered To Act
Criminal Judge Chester K. Hart in a special lynching charge instructed the grand jury "to take such steps immediately as may be necessary to bring the guilty parties to justice."

Meanwhile, at Columbia, Chief Deputy Sheriff W. A. Pinkston said an investigation had been started, but little progress made.

Accused of an attempted attack on a young white girl near Columbia, the negro had been held in the Davidson county jail for safe keeping prior to his release Friday on instructions from Columbia where the grand jury failed to return an indictment.

Pastors Demand Action
Governor McAllister's decision to post the reward was made after a committee showed him a resolution adopted by the Nashville pastors' association asking him to "sound a note for law supremacy throughout our state and to summon afresh all officers to do their full duty without

4,000 Pounds Of Food Paid At Door To U. Of Md. Dance

College Park, Md., Dec. 20—A bag of potatoes, a can of tomatoes, a box of breakfast food, bread, beans and quantities of other foodstuffs served as admission tickets to the appeal dance held by University of Maryland's students here Tuesday night as one of the events of campus appeal day, held for the aid of the needy.

More than two tons of food, a great quantity of clothing and $65 in money represented the total of gifts of the students which will be distributed through welfare agencies to poor families in the neighborhood of the college.

Campus appeal day will long be remembered by the recipients of the gifts as well as the donors. Clothing was collected at a booth in the auditorium, presided over by Miss Anna Shaw and a corps of assistants, to whom the collegians brought suits, dresses, sweaters, coats, shoes and other garments to be given to the less fortunate.

At another booth in the administration building Miss Anna Marie Quirk, Washington, took in nickels, dimes, quarters and other money donations left by students for those needing money gifts most. It was at the dance, however, that the most imposing array of donations began to collect as the pleasure-seeking students deposited their admission fees in the form of food. Seemingly each vied with the other to give most and well over 4,000 pounds of edibles had been received by the ticket takers before the last arrivals had been checked in.

Music for the dance was furnished free by the two campus orchestras—the Old Liners and the Collegiates. There also was played and sung for the first time the new college song "The Glory of Old Maryland," by Bryant Long, of Hyattsville.

GUARD REMAINS ACTIVE

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—Acting Secretary Morgenthau said Monday that under his personal direction the coast guard was bringing its full force to bear against a rum fleet that was attempting to smuggle liquors into the United States. The acting secretary said there were 173 ships, 165 of them flying the British flag, engaged in rum running, and that aside from the call for naval help on the Pacific coast where the coast guard has no airplanes, the coast guard was handling the problem.

Traces Secret Life's Source

Washington, Dec. 20—The elusive secret of what life is was traced today to the heart of the tiny gene, the unit of heredity less than eight millionths of an inch in diameter, by Dr. C. B. Davenport, of the Carnegie Institute of Washington.

Latest scientific discoveries show, Dr. Davenport said in his annual report as head of the institution's department of genetics, that the gene is the actual creator of life in addition to its better known task of carrying inherited characteristics like color of eyes from one generation to another.

The scientist explained that this life-creator probably consists of a compound molecule, a bundle of several smaller molecules which in turn consists of clusters of atoms. They create life by their ability to divide into other groups of molecules, all of which retain the qualities of the parent molecule. The secret of what life is, the difference between living and dead matter, lies in this ability of the gene molecules to divide spontaneously, Dr. Davenport said, picturing it as the force that keeps life going in the universe in opposition to other forces pushing it toward stagnation and death.

"When we understand the structure of the gene we shall know the essential difference between living and non-living matter," he said.

Caught Smuggling Rum Into Canada

Quebec, Dec. 20 — United States customs officers uncovered what appeared to be a reversal of the flow of bootleg liquor when they seized 2,000 gallons of American liquor destined for Canadian ports.

The seizure was made near St. Hilaire, on the New Brunswick border, when officers became suspicious of the contents of a boxcar attached to a freight train. No arrests were made.

It was believed to be the first attempt to smuggle liquor into Canada since repeal, and the seizure indicated the determination of American authorities to co-operate with Canada in preventing it.

Armistice In Chaco Urged By Paraguay

Bolivian Envoy Tells Parley His Nation "Disposed To Listen" To Peace Plan.

Montevideo, Dec. 20 (AP)—An armistice in the 50-year dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Gran Chaco border area, in which thousands have been killed and wounded, was proposed Monday by Paraguay before the Pan-American conference.

Previously President Salamiencia of Bolivia had advised President Gabriel Terra of Uruguay, conference chairman, that Bolivia was "disposed to listen" to peace proposals and a definite announcement of the truce was considered imminent.

Paraguayan delegates suggested that hostilities cease between midnight Tuesday and midnight on December 30. This President Terra immediately cabled to Salamanca, pressing for an immediate acceptance.

If the armistice is arranged, President Ayala of Paraguay said, he intended to insist on the broadest guarantees against a renewal of hostilities at any time in the future.

False reports of an armistice set Montevideo agog Monday afternoon when news of President Ayala's proposal caused newspapers to blow the sirens of their plants in the belief that a last peace was about to be effected.

DUCE GIVES ARMY

BALL ROOM GARB
Rome (AP)—Evening clothes for army officers constitute one of the innovations established by Benito Mussolini, war minister. A published announcement informs the officers that a special uniform appropriate for ballroom wear is being designed for them. The Military Gazette lists this among the important improvements in the service since the duce took over the ministry last July.

Girls on Chinese Police Forces Perform Same Duties as Men

Peiping, Dec. 20 (AP)—For the first time in China's history, Chinese women have joined the police force as regular members.

After three months of training, eighteen stalwart bobbed-haired girls have been engaged by the Peiping municipality to chase burglars, round up opium smugglers and deal with other miscreants.

The girls range in age from seventeen to twenty-five years. They appeared on the streets dressed in khaki-skirted uniforms, wearing the regulation service revolvers and batons. They had undergone a thorough course in revolver shooting, wielding the baton, and handling a criminal at close range by hand to hand methods. Just what these latter are the police department has not divulged and the policewomen are not showing their tricks until they have real occasion to do so.

Their first jobs have been census taking and other "non-violent" tasks. The police department has announced that they soon will perform the same duties as the men.

Later it is planned to increase the "ladies department" and a plainclothes detective corps is to be among the units added.

Encouraged by the success of women police in Peiping, the Tientsin municipal government has taken on fifty unmarried women policewomen. The new members of the force have discarded their skirts, high-heel shoes and long hair, and are wearing the regulation policeman's trousers, brass-buttoned tunic, puttees, bobbed-hair, holsters and revolvers.

Bethlehem Star Baffles Science

Mystery Of Manifestation To Magi Remains Unsolved; No Records Available.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (AP)—It's almost 2000 years since the three wise men of Biblical legend followed the star of Bethlehem to the Christ-child, but astronomers still can't say whether that heavenly guide was a comet or constellation, new star or myth.

Hundreds of Philadelphians, who trooped to the Franklin Institute's new planetarium—one of two operating in this country, saw the stars and planets Sunday as they looked to the shepherds on the hills of Palestine that first Christmas eve in the year 6 B. C., accepted by many scientists as the correct year of Christ's birth—but they didn't see the star of Bethlehem.

"What the actual star was that was seen by the magi is hard to determine," said James B. Stokely, assistant director of the institute. "At that time a comet of great proportions might have been flashed through the skies or a dark star might suddenly have blinked into brightness. These things, if they happened, would have left no record and so cannot be checked."

It is known, another lecturer said, that a strange "conjunction" of the planets, Saturn, Jupiter and Mars occurred in the spring of the year 6 B. C., and the unusual brilliance of their light might have been taken for that of a new star. If the magi saw this, it might easily have taken them from spring until Christmas eve to travel from their homes to the holy manger, it was explained.

Bigler Quintet Wins 3rd Victory

Boys' And Girls' Teams Win Over John Carroll Players Monday Night.

Biglerville high school won its third straight basketball double-header Monday night at Biglerville, the boys defeating John Carroll, 36-19, and the girls winning from the John Carroll sextette, 26-6.

In the boys' game Deardoff and Krumrine were the luminaries for their respective teams accounting for 21 and 17 points, respectively. Biglerville led throughout the entire contest.

Playing a tight defensive game which permitted but one field goal the Biglerville girls had little trouble in winning their third straight. E. Rice looped twelve points to lead the upper countings.

Dog Finds Way Home After 3-Month Trip

Joliet, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP)—It took him three months to do it but "Mike," a small and wiry fox terrier, got home Monday.

Home for him is the Franciscan order's establishment here. A year ago, Mike's owner, the Rev. Eligius Weir, of Joliet prison staff, gave the dog to an 8-year-old Chicago boy, John Surges, who took Mike there.

Three months ago Mike left his new home. Monday he showed up at the headquarters of the Franciscan order after a forty-mile trip, bruised, battered and nearly starved. Father Weir will keep him.

Looking Around

A real basketball treat is in store for fans tonight when the Renaissance, claimants not only to the colored championship, but also the world's title, clash with the Fleet-Wings on the Hotel Gettysburg annex floor.

The Rens will appear with the same lineup that last year hung up a record of 127 victories while losing but 8 games. Cooper, Jenkins, Satch, Holt, Yancey, Slocum and Ricks, compose the visitors' lineup.

The Wings will have practically the same lineup that handed the Philadelphia Passions their initial defeat of the year. "Hen" Bream will also be on hand and ready for action.

A preliminary game that should provide many thrills will be played, between the Sweetland quintet and the local C. C. C. camp unit. The Sweetland aggregation will make its initial appearance attired in bright new uniforms of orange and blue.

A game to be played Christmas afternoon at 3 o'clock has been arranged with the Liberty club of York. No preliminary game will be played. Saturday the Wings meet Womelsdorf on the local floor.

Twice unavoidably postponed, Coach Forney and the Gettysburg high school Maroons will be forced to wait until January 5 to open their court season here with Mechanicsburg high. On the following evening Gettysburg college dribblers swing into action with Muhlenberg as the opponent on the local floor.

Coon Dog Killed In Shotgun Trap

Plan To Rid Farm Of Fox Costs Inventor Term Of Three Months In Jail.

Harrisburg, Dec. 20—Three Susquehanna county coon hunters recently had one of the most unusual experiences ever reported to the dog law enforcement division of the bureau of animal industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture. While hunting one night, their dog entered a corn field and was instantly killed by the discharge of a gun. Shot narrowly missed hitting one of the men in the party. No person other than the three hunters could be found in the vicinity.

Investigation revealed three guns

Muhlenberg as the opponent on the local floor.

set and loaded with buck shot. Two guns were baited with meat and the third was set on a log in the woods with a wire running the full length of the log.

The dog killed was properly licensed and a state dog law enforcement agent was called in to investigate. The findings resulted in the owner being paid by the commonwealth for the value of the dog.

The excuse given by the individual responsible for setting the guns, was that he expected to kill a fox. He was sentenced to three months in the county jail.

Professors Find Jobs In Turkey

Istanbul, Dec. 20 (AP) — With ninety-six old Turkish professors thrown out, and thirty-six professors, mostly non-Aryans, late of Germany, installed, a reformed Turkish university has opened in Istanbul.

In spite of a $75,000 budget, the university found the cost of reformation so great, that it borrowed $1,000,000 with which to carry on its new laboratories and new medical school.

Turkish banks floated the loan, which is guaranteed by the Turkish ministry of finance.

IN MEMORIAM

Linebaugh—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mary V. Linebaugh, who passed away two years ago today, December 20, 1931. And for our dear son and brother, Lawrence, who was called to rest July 13, 1933.

When evening shadows are falling, And I am sitting all alone, In my heart there comes a longing—If you only could come home. Even death has a wonderful mission: Though it robs us of those we love, It draws us from our surroundings To the joy of meeting above. No matter how heavy our woes are, No matter how great our despair, Heaven always seems nearer and brighter, To know that our loved ones are there.

Girls on Chinese Police Forces Perform Same Duties as Men

Peiping, Dec. 20 (AP)—For the first time in China's history, Chinese women have joined the police force as regular members. After three months of training, eighteen stalwart bobbed-haired girls have been engaged by the Peiping municipality to chase burglars, round up opium smugglers and deal with other miscreants. The girls range in age from seventeen to twenty-five years. They appeared on the streets dressed in khaki-skirted uniforms, wearing the regulation service revolvers and batons. They had undergone a thorough course in revolver shooting, wielding the baton and handling a criminal at close range by hand to hand methods. Just what these latter are the police department has not divulged and the policewomen are not showing their tricks until they have real occasion to do so. Their first jobs have been census taking and other non-violent tasks. The police department has announced that they soon will perform the same duties as the men. Later it is planned to increase the "ladies department" and a plain clothes detective corps is to be added among the units added. Encouraged by the success of women police in Peiping, the Tientsin municipal government has taken on fifty unmarried women policewomen. The new members of the force have discarded their skirts, high-heel shoes and long hair, and are wearing the regulation policeman's trousers, brass-buttoned tunics, puttees, bobbed hair, holsters and revolvers.

Professors Find Jobs In Turkey

Istanbul, Dec. 20 (AP)—With ninety-six old Turkish professors thrown out, and thirty-six professors, mostly non-Aryans, late of Germany, installed, a reformed Turkish university has opened in Istanbul. In spite of a $75,000 budget, the university found the cost of reformation so great, that it borrowed $1,000,000 with which to carry on its new laboratories and new medical school. Turkish banks floated the loan, which is guaranteed by the Turkish ministry of finance.

Dog Finds Way Home After 3-Month Trip

Joliet, Ill., Dec. 20 (AP)—It took him three months to do it but "Mike," a small and wiry fox terrier, got home Monday.

Home for him is the Franciscan order's establishment here. A year ago, Mike's owner, the Rev. Eligius Weir, of Joliet prison staff, gave the dog to an 8-year-old Chicago boy, John Surges, who took Mike there.

Three months ago Mike left his new home. Monday he showed up at the headquarters of the Franciscan order after a forty-mile trip, bruised, battered and nearly starved. Father Weir will keep him.

Looking Around

A real basketball treat is in store for fans tonight when the Renaissance, claimants not only to the colored championship, but also the world's title, clash with the Fleet-Wings on the Hotel Gettysburg annex floor.

The Rens will appear with the same lineup that last year hung up a record of 127 victories while losing but 8 games. Cooper, Jenkins, Satch, Holt, Yancey, Slocum and Ricks, compose the visitors' lineup.

The Wings will have practically the same lineup that handed the Philadelphia Passons their initial defeat of the year. "Hen" Bream will also be on hand and ready for action.

A preliminary game that should provide many thrills will be played between the Sweetland quintet and the local C. C. C. camp unit. The Sweetland aggregation will make its initial appearance attired in bright new uniforms of orange and blue.

A game to be played Christmas afternoon at 3 o'clock has been arranged with the Liberty club of York. No preliminary game will be played. Saturday the Wings meet Womelsdorf on the local floor.

Twice unavoidably postponed, Coach Forney and the Gettysburg high school Maroons will be forced to wait until January 5 to open their court season here with Mechanicsburg high. On the following evening Gettysburg college dribblers swing into action with Muhlenberg as the opponent on the local floor.

Coon Dog Killed In Shotgun Trap

Plan To Rid Farm Of Fox Costs Inventor Term Of Three Months In Jail.

Harrisburg, Dec. 20—Three Susquehanna county coon hunters recently had one of the most unusual experiences ever reported to the dog law enforcement division of the bureau of animal industry, Pennsylvania department of agriculture. While hunting one night, their dog entered a corn field and was instantly killed by the discharge of a gun. Shot narrowly missed hitting one of the men in the party. No person other than the three hunters could be found in the vicinity.

set and loaded with buck shot. Two guns were baited with meat and the third was set on a log in the woods with a wire running the full length of the log. The dog killed was properly licensed and a state dog law enforcement agent was called in to investigate. The findings resulted in the owner being paid by the commonwealth for the value of the dog.

The excuse given by the individual responsible for setting the guns, was that he expected to kill a fox. He was sentenced to three months in the county jail.
